Note regarding Accelerated Benefit Rider Disclosure Forms for Universal Life products:

There are four different ABR disclosure forms for the Universal Life products. Two are for the single life products, and two are for the joint life products.

For the single life products, the first form listed (BJF-00749A or specific state version) is for insureds that are rated Table D or better. The second form listed (BJF-00749B or specific state version) is for insureds that are rated Table E or higher.

For the joint life products, the first form listed (BJF-00749C or specific state version) is for when both of the insureds are rated Table D or better, AND the age difference between the insureds is less than 20 years. The second form listed (BJF-00749D or specific state version) is for when either insured is rated Table E or higher, or when the age difference between the insureds is 20 years or more.

If only one form is listed, then that form is used in all situations, regardless of rating or age difference.

For conversions and exchanges, additional rules apply. In addition to the above, if the original policy did not have ABR, or the ABR on the original policy did not have the critical illness provision, and the new policy is being issued without underwriting, then the second form must be used, regardless of rating, and the ABR on the new policy must not include the critical illness provision. The first form, and the ABR with critical illness, can only be used on cases that are being underwritten.

Note regarding Accelerated Benefit Rider Disclosure Forms for VUL products:

There are two different ABR disclosure forms for the VUL products.

The first form listed (BJF-01011 or specific state version) is for insureds that are rated Table D or better. The second form listed (BJF-01010 or specific state version) is for insureds that are rated Table E or higher.

If only one form is listed, then that form is used in all situations, regardless of rating.

For conversions and exchanges, additional rules apply. In addition to the above, if the original policy did not have ABR, or the ABR on the original policy did not have the critical illness provision, and the new policy is being issued without underwriting, then the second form must be used, regardless of rating, and the ABR on the new policy must not include the critical illness provision. The first form, and the ABR with critical illness, can only be used on cases that are being underwritten.
